HAY-DRIER TRIED OUT. Employes of Bellows Falls Co. Invent New Machine.

Bellows Falls, July 28.-Thirty or forty interested spectators gathered at Friday when a demonstration was given of William M. Richardson and M. C. Dodge, both employes of the Vermont Farm Machine company of this village. The machine is a galvanized iron portabout three feet in width. The green grass is fed in by hand at one end and is carried by a roller chain wire screen conveyed the length of the apparatus, passing over a series of oil heaters and being deposited in a rack at the other

The machine is operated by gasoline power and has a temporary arrangement consisting of nine oil stoves, supplying the heat. The conveyor travels slowly, taking about one and a half minutes to pass from one end of the apparatus to the other. It is estimated that with the present machine only about two tons of hay a day could be handled.

The inventors were more than satisfied with the result. There is no doubt but what the hav was thoroughly and evenly dried and with improvements the machine may become a valuable asset to the farmer in a rainy season. The ap-

St. Johnsbury, July 28.-As Charles H. Howe was driving home from Victory Friday he overtook and asked to ride with him a man by the name of Cox, who is alleged to have deserted a year ago from Camp Devens. Cox has been apparently spending the year in the neighborhood of Victory. He is lodged in the St. Johnsbury jail and the police are seeking instructions from Camp Devens authorities.

Who Huidekoper Is.

"Who is this Col. Fred L. Huidekoper of Illinois, who tells the House war investigating committee that the United States army in Europe was 'groggy' toward the close of the activities and could not have kept on a month longer if the Germans had held out? Who is such a prodigy of military information as to be able to declare what the possibilities of a million or two human beings would be at the end of a month? Why is he a mere colonel? Why not a commanding general? These questions naturally come to one's mind in reading the testimony regarding the state of affairs in the United States forces abroad. We learn that Colonel Huidekoper was formerly adjutant of the 33d division from Illinois and then we wait for more particulars before coming to the conclusion that the United States army was practically 'all in' and more or less demoralized, as Colonel Huidekoper's statement seems to indicate."-Barre Times.

It is only natural that the contemporary is a bit indignant over the testi-mony given by Colonel Huidekoper before a Congress military affairs committee, but if one remembers correctly the colonel attributed the remark about the army being groggy to someone in the the rapids, when he was drawn under by inspector general's department. As to the inquiry as to just who this Colonel Huidekoper is, it is only fair to the contented with the long hours and small colonel to say that he is one of the forepay and one, W. E. Sheldon, left the job most military experts in the United States, an author of note and merit on soon unless there is an increase of 20 military affairs, a man often consulted per cent in their wages and one day off in the past by the Congress and army officials relative to military matters both here and abroad, and an earnest and ef fective worker for American prepared Judge S. N. Gage of Ascutneyville has a ness for many years. The truth of the matter is, Colonel Huidekoper is a recogcrown of 20 blossoms on the tip of the nized expert in military matters, such a flower stalk. This member of the lily one, indeed, whose commendation men in Congress working for army improvement and was brought to this country a few have been gratified to receive. He is not years ago by agents of the Arnold Ar-boretum an unknown, not a sensationalist, but rather one whose words have had great weight in the past. Perhaps when his Mrs. Robert Demers, formerly Miss omplete testimony before the committee Cecil Murphy of Brattleboro, a trained is available his views will appear difing worth while is to be gained by trying Brattleboro, who died in 1910. In 1913 to laugh this man out of court.-St. Al

The Race Riots at Washington.

It is hardly possible to consider the deplorable outbreak at the national capital apart from the general contagion of violence which is sweeping the world. Too little attention has been given in this country to the remarkable and portentous recent outbreaks of precisely the the C. E. Howard farm in Westminster same sort in England. That is universally allowed to be as orderly and lawof an automatic hay drying machine, the abiding a country as any in the world, result of several weeks' work on the part and till lately it has hardly had a race problem. But the war brought to its seaport towns a considerable colored pop ulation, composed in great part of British subjects. Some of them married able affair about 20 feet in length and white women, others were accused of competing with British labor and with surprising rapidity a bitterness of feeling developed, which in recent months led to a series of riots very similar to those now disturbing Washington. In normal times it would be hardly conceivable in England and extremely improbable on any such scale in the District of Columbia; in both cases the outbreaks must be judged as a product of abnormal times.

They are not for that reason the less alarming, but rather the contrary; they are small, violent gusts on the out skirts of a evelonic storm, and they give an ominous hint of the violence of rage and unreason at the center. Hatred is raised to the highest pitch, national hatred, race batred, class batred; in wide regions it has become hysterical in its fury, and pogroms, massacres and race the farmer in a rainy season. The appearatus will be returned to the Vermont Farm Machine company's shop to-day for further improvement.

Vermont's Highways. Tourists are finding Vermont roads at this time better than they average elsewhere, it is stated they testify. Just now, they are in good condition, especially where they have seen the road drag or hone. Automobilists prefer a good smooth gravel or dirt road to any other type, and Vermont ought to have just such highways everywhere. The only thing necessary is to build them right and then keep them smooth. The best roads in the country are availabl for Vermont at the least cost. We haven't been getting at the road work early in the spripg and we haven't been patroling them; those are the two priniple criticisms that will hold against our ciple criticisms that will hold against our and Records. Common Sense on Both Sides.

In weighing the factors which contrib

By the fields of the Randolph Center Potato spoken word, by printed circular, by force of example they urged strict compliance with this advice upon their fellow citizens. And to their efforts, as much as to the sporadic showers, the police authorities give credit for the happy fact that the mobs which, on the three preceding nights, swayed through cently discovered diseases, mosaic and the colored sections of the city were entirely checked. Distrustful of the orders and advice of the authorities, Washington's colored citizenry heeded the words of their own leaders and the streets were kept clear.

The second contributing factor lies in the tactics of the authorities in the function of maintaining order. With a largely increased military force for this purpose on hand there was a material reduction in their numbers conspicuous on the streets. A PAPEC DOES THE BUSINESS

It throws and blows in a steady stream, but not in bunches that clog. Six fans are working all the time. That is the reason a Papec Blower will cut and elevate corn successfully with a 3 to 6-h. p. engine. We have a carload just in. Come and see a real, honest-to-goodness Blower.
